

AM Psalm 15 raises for us the question of v. 1, which we can restate as “Who can come into the presence of God?” And I would call your attention, in response to that question, to the following three points:

I. The one who bears God’s character can come into His presence (The righteous).

II. This presents, however, a problem for fallen man. (None of us, after the Fall).

III. Thus we see the need for one who bears God’s character and who can by such bring us who are fallen back to God. (Christ, and those who enjoy His righteousness).
